

Dr. Anand M did his undergraduate and postgraduate training in MD General Medicine at Madras Medical College and Rajiv Gandhi Government General Hospital, Chennai. He thereafter did his DM Cardiology from Sree Chitra Tirunal Institute of Medical Sciences and Technology, Thiruvananthapuram followed by a two-year fellowship course in Cardiac Pacing and Electrophysiology from Christian Medical College, Vellore. He thereafter joined as faculty in the Cardiac Electrophysiology and Pacing Unit.

During his academic career, Dr. Anand has received several awards which included the prestigious proficiency certificate in ECG reading from the Indian Society of Electrocardiography. He was awarded the Dr.A.R. Vijayakumar Award for Young Scientist and the Dr.N.Kasirajan Award in the Quiz competition at the 7th Annual Conference of TAPICON – 2011. In 2016 he won the first prize in the Cardiology quiz held by ICC – Kerala chapter in Kovalam, Trivandrum. He topped the assessment in the First EP 101 Cardiac Electrophysiology workshop held at JIPMER, Puducherry on the 16 and 17 of March 2019. He has also made several oral and poster presentations at national conferences like the CSI.

Dr. Anand brings with him sound subject knowledge and great academic training. His areas of interest are catheter ablation of complex atrial arrhythmias and physiological Pacing.